ROTARY CENTRE FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDIES IN PEACE AND CONFLICT RESOLUTION

PAUL HARRIS SEMINAR

ROTARY WORLD PEACE FELLOWS AT THE
UNIVERSITY OF QUEENSLAND:
PROJECTS IN PEACE AND CONFLICT RESOLUTION.

SATURDAY
28TH OCTOBER 2006

UQ CENTRE
UNIVERSITY OF QUEENSLAND, ST LUCIA

WELCOME FROM THE DIRECTOR

Welcome to The University of Queensland's third annual Paul Harris Seminar. We are delighted that you are able to join us on this important occasion where the third intake of Rotary World Peace Fellows presents their research to a broad audience of Rotarians, academics and the general public. Our fourth intake of World Peace Fellows is also with us today and will be acting in various capacities to facilitate today's proceedings.

The Rotary Centre for International Studies in peace and conflict resolution at The University of Queensland was established in 1999, after an extensive world-wide search by Rotary International. Rotary wished to initiate a new program that would make a practical contribution to the search for a more peaceful world. Each year sixty World Peace Fellows attend one of six Rotary Centres to undertake a Masters Degree in peace and conflict resolution.

Here at The University of Queensland, our first and second intakes of peace fellows have completed their studies and are applying what they learned throughout the world. The third class who will be presenting today have been steadily engaged in their studies and are due to complete their degrees in a few weeks' time.

One important component of their degree program is the Paul Harris Seminar. This seminar was designed as a way to link UQ more closely with Rotarians and as an opportunity for Rotarians to hear first-hand about the special work that the peace scholars have been conducting. It is also the University's way of thanking Rotary for its funding of the program and indeed for its enlightened decision to work towards world peace, justice and understanding, values shared by the University and which are reflected in its excellent teaching and research programs in peace and international relations.

As Director of the Centre here, I can say that not only is this a worthy project, but it is one that has enabled us all to benefit from the presence of these wonderful and very able fellows. I am sure you will enjoy the presentations made by our fellows today and that you will join me in wishing them well as they approach the completion of their studies in Queensland and head out to take their place in building a more peaceful and just world.

Workshop A

Impoverishment rather than poverty – reflections from Central American Nicaragua

Presented by Larissa Brunn

Room: 32- 215 (morning session)

Why should we talk about impoverishment rather than poverty?

Impoverishment challenges us to draw attention to institutions and processes that actively create and maintain poverty, rather than to the idea of being poor or not.

This workshop looks at why people in the autonomous coastal region of Central American Nicaragua insist that they are impoverished, rather than poor. Furthermore the workshop explores how this could be reflected in global peace building activities, as examples the different aid and development cooperation schemes that are channelled to benefit people like them. The workshop wants to reflect the ideas and views of the people we usually bunch as "poor".

The workshop wants to question how we talk about and understand poverty, drawing, among other, from the experience of working with local communities in the autonomous Atlantic coastal areas of Central American Nicaragua.

Workshop A

Building Bridges -From Bombs and Bullets to Bread and Butter

A Peace Fellow's Experience in Handling Terrorism

Santosh Mehra (India)

Room: 32- 215 (morning session)

JOIN THE WAR

It is mostly about Struggle, occasionally about achievements.

It is mostly about dilemmas, occasionally about discernment

It is mostly about conflicts, occasionally about resolution.

It is mostly about violence, occasionally about peace

It is always about life, about love and about understanding

Grounded in the personal reflections of a Commissioned police officer, who has more than seven years of 'eyeball to eyeball' experience in combating terrorism, this Workshop gives you rare insights into the dangerous, dark and murky 'World of Terrorism'.

The Workshop initially looks at how and why 'one man's terrorist is another man's freedom fighter'. It then transports you to the treacherous and deep forests of the South Indian state of Andhra Pradesh, home to one of the deadliest terrorist organizations in the World. It then engages you into the trials and tribulations of a young police officer, torn between the compulsions and demands of his job and the voice of his conscience. It finally provides you with new perspectives and fresh ways of looking at and handling terrorism.

Not for the weak hearted, this participative and interactive workshop promises to leave you chewing your nails, racking your brains and questioning your beliefs.

Workshop B

Let's play peace,
can art break the cycle of violence?

Northern Uganda: The Dilemma Towards a Comprehensive Settlement of the Conflict

Presented by: Arik Gultler Ofir (Israel)

Godfrey Mulkai (Uganda)

Room: Lecture Theatre – 32-211 (morning session)

Let's play peace, can art break the cycle of violence ?

Arik Gutler Ofir used to work as a theatre practitioner in Israel, engaging with Arab and Jewish youth. Four semesters in UQ changed his perspective and his approach to the use of art in a conflict environment. Arik will reflect on the long academic and emotional journey he travelled from Israel to UQ and back home, and will present his new plans for the near future in Israel, based on his studies some of the ideas will be practiced with the workshop's participants.

Northern Uganda: The dilemma towards a comprehensive settlement of the conflict.

Issues of discussion

1. Peace and Justice. what comes first?
2. Identity/Sectarianism as root cause of conflict.
3. International Criminal Court (ICC) indictment on rebel leaders.
4. Mato Oput: The Acholic traditional conflict resolution process.

Workshop C

Regenerating Communities

Presented by Karla Castellanos (USA)

Room: UQ Centre – Lecture Theatre (morning session)

Many cities in developing countries are plagued by the effects of environmental degradation, pollution, and poor infrastructure. These already difficult circumstances are sometimes exacerbated by the occurrence of change generators such as disasters or armed conflict. After such events, most communities work together to restore the quality of life to their neighbourhoods by overcoming the lack of resources, implementing disaster mitigation measures, and relying on grassroots organizations. This interactive workshop will illustrate some of the challenges of participatory design in the process of regenerating communities in developing countries.

Workshop D

Local ownership in International Administration & Resource Scarcity: Does it drive conflict or cooperation?

Presented by: Maiko Shimzu (Japan)

M. Fernanda Salina (Argentina)

Room: 32-207 (afternoon session)

'Local ownership' in International Transitional Administration

This research aims at unravelling the relations between international and local actors in international transitional administration. There has been an academic debate on whether or not peacebuilding strategy should take a neo-colonialist approach. In the meanwhile, practitioners in international agencies have been increasingly stressing on the importance of ensuring 'local ownership' in the peacebuilding process, although its definition remains unclear. Against this background, this research first provides historical analysis on how the relations between external and internal actors have been transformed since the Mandates System of the League of Nations. Especially, through discourse analysis, it tries to explain how the policies of international agencies nowadays define such relations. Second, drawing upon the case study of the United Nations Transitional Administration in East Timor (UNTAET) from 1999 to 2002, it explains a gap between policy and practice, and analyses why there was such a gap. This research concludes that although recent international administration does have some similarities with the past trusteeship, there are some important conceptual and strategic evolutions in international transitional administration. And the conception of 'local ownership' is one key to measure such difference.

Resource Scarcity: Does it drive conflict or cooperation?

That the next wars will be over water, I do not think so! In this workshop I will present some of the findings of the latest paper I wrote. I will examine the problem of resource scarcity and I will argue that instead of driving nations to war it will bring nations together through a cooperative and collaborative behaviours. To this end I will look into the case of water scarcity and the manner it has been resolved through history. The overwhelming evidence on the peaceful resolution of water disputes leads to the following question: what has made those cases so successful? To know the answer you will have to come to the workshop.

Workshop E

Disaster Management - 'Pakistan Earthquake'

Presented by: Jude Ewing (UK)

Room: 32-215 (afternoon session)

This workshop is intended to give participants the chance to explore the many issues and complexities of an international disaster relief mission, in this case the 2005 earthquake in Northern Pakistan. After an initial briefing participants will roll play some of the different actors involved in the earthquake relief, for example the UN, Pakistani Authorities, Donors and the local was well as international NGOs. The goal is to give participants the opportunity to increase their understanding and insight of the many issues they would confront in their respective rolls while trying to achieve various objectives, for example the delivery of Rotary Shelter Boxes to a relief camp and an isolated village. Peace Fellow Jude Ewing, who has first hand experience of the UN relief mission in Pakistan, will be on hand to guide the experience. The workshop will then conclude with a group discussion, where the participants can share their experiences and any lessons learned, as well as ask questions about the Peace Fellow's own experiences with the real relief mission. There will be plenty of scope for participants to explore key organisational and conflict management skills in what will be a rewarding, enlightening but also hands-on experience!

Workshop F

Poverty and Peace

Presented by Pedro Delgado (Peru),
Caitlin Fitzpatrick (USA) &
Leah Klass (USA)

Room: 32 - 211 (afternoon session)

Poverty is often the result of a lack of human and labour rights, access to education and services and corrupt political processes, all factors which can contribute to the degradation of the human spirit, the sense that one is left out of the formal economy and society, not important in the world.

Peaceful community mobilization is not always the intuitive choice for change for those living without basic resources. This is one of the many challenges we face as future peace builders: helping to build bridges between those with the knowledge and resources to help promote such peaceful change, and those who are in dire need of that change.

Larissa Bruun

Finland, District 1380

After achieving a Master of Social Sciences degree from the University of Tampere in journalism and mass communication & international relations, Larissa has held positions as a journalist, worked with the Finnish Ministry for Foreign Affairs and volunteered with street children in Latin America. Before coming to UQ Larissa worked with Ramboll Finnconsult in Finland as a junior consultant specialising in development cooperation (gender, human rights, rural development).

Larissa has written her thesis for the UQ from Nicaragua, where she in August started as a program officer (policy work and information) with a non governmental organisation that among other works with the ethnic and indigenous minorities in the autonomous areas of the Nicaraguan Atlantic coast. In her new position Larissa hopes to promote global social justice through advocacy work and awareness rising. Larissa is proficient in Finnish, Swedish, Spanish, and English and speaks a bit of French and German too, she also added some basic vocabulary of Urdu into her range of languages while doing her Applied Field Experience – part of the studies at the UQ – in the earthquake hit areas of Pakistan November 2005-January 2006.

Karla Castellanos

USA, District 6990

After studying urban design at the master's level at the Joint Centre of Urban Design at Oxford Brookes University in the United Kingdom following a Bachelor's Degree in Architecture from the University of Miami in the USA. Karla brings practical knowledge to her job as a project architect in design development of medium to high density urban residential projects in the South Florida. Karla plans to put her design skills into action after the completion of her master's degree at UQ by working with international humanitarian agencies in a role that implements community development or urban regeneration for survivor communities of armed conflict or natural disaster.

Karla in India September 2006

Pedro Pablo Delgado Hinostroza

Peru, District 4450

Pedro was born stateless until the Peruvian Government granted him nationality on his first birthday. After getting his Bachelor's degree in Law and Political Science from the University of Lima, he took a three and a half years break to travel the world and the seven seas. After being exhausted from flying as a Flight Attendant he decided to go back to politics and studied in the Diplomatic Academy of Peru for two years. After that he joined the Peruvian Diplomatic Service. He has worked twice in the Cabinet of the Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs of Peru, and he has represented his country as a diplomat in the Czech Republic, Poland and Hungary. After completing his studies at UQ, he plans to change Statecraft's philosophy, by expanding the concept of Foreign Policy, where it won't be any more understood as the defense of the national interest but as the defense of the world's interest. Pedro speaks English, Czech, French and Spanish, and soon will start learning Klingon.

Jude Ewing

UK, District 1180

With a Bachelor of Arts in International Relations and Organizational Management from the University of Lancaster, and language proficiencies including Swedish, Jude has found that his studies and work experience have helped him to become a successful mediator and special branch advisor to a United Nations Association. He has been the Neutral Chair / Mediator of a Muslim-Jewish Dialogue for 2 years, an international project manager and founded and ran one the largest and most successful United Nations Association Student and Youth branches in the UK. Jude intends to use his skills in mediation, organizational management and his education in the Masters degree at UQ to move into working for the UN or another humanitarian agency in disaster management and conflict transformation.

Jude undertook his Applied Field experience in Pakistan with the United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs and worked with the management and facilitation of the relief operation of the recent earthquake.

Caitlin Fitzpatrick USA, District 5450

Caitlin believes that building bridges amongst diverse communities is a vital step in promoting peace; an endeavour that she began through her work as an educator in Colorado in bilingual special education classrooms. A love for Latin America has guided her in her academic and professional pursuits. Caitlin attained her Bachelor of Arts in Spanish and Latin American Studies with a minor in Political Science from the University of Colorado. After working with children and teens from socio-economically disadvantaged communities for several years, Caitlin felt inspired to add to her experience and enhance her potential to act as an agent for social justice in her community. During her time as a World Peace Fellow, Caitlin has been trained in mediation techniques and completed her Applied Field Experience with the U.S. State Department as a policy analyst at the Bureau of Democracy, Human Rights and Labor. Caitlin hopes to build a more peaceful global climate by working not only on policy issues, but also within the local community to promote cultural understanding and fundamental human rights through education.

Arik Gutler Ofir

Israel, District 2490

As a citizen of Israel, Arik has been heavily involved in establishing and producing multi-cultural activities for Arabs and Jewish students. With a bachelors degree with major in history and general studies from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, he has used his knowledge of theatre to create peace by involving people in theatre workshops. He hopes that his experiences and education at UQ will enable him to establish a multi-cultural art centres in the north of Israel and promote peace in this historically troubled area.

Leah Klass

USA, District 7610

Leah Klass graduated from the University of Virginia with Bachelors of Arts in Anthropology and Latin American Studies. She is fluent in English, Portuguese and Spanish and has lived and worked in the Americas. Her professional experience has been focused on public relations and international marketing within both local government and the private sector settings. She has volunteered with Partners of the Americas, the Red Cross and a bilingual conflict mediation group and has experience working with international youth leadership programs. She completed her internship in Fortaleza, Brazil where she worked on micro credit programs for women and youth. She looks forward to a future career which will allow her to work helping others to access resources and gain the skills necessary to further their own education and take their futures into their own hands.

Santosh Mehra

India, District 3150

Santosh Mehra is a serving Indian Police Officer, presently on Study Leave from the Government of India. He has handled a wide gamut of assignments in the state of Andhra Pradesh, India which include handling terrorism, investigating economic offences, and tracking down hard –core criminals and managing traffic. He also has worked with United Nations as a Peacekeeper in Angola. Proficient in English, Hindi and Telugu, Santosh has earned a Bachelor of Commerce and a Master of Business Administration from Lucknow University in India, and a Master in Public Service and Administration from Texas A&M University in the USA. Santosh aims to integrate his work experience and freshly acquired knowledge at UQ to formulate and implement policies and strategies that help resolve conflicts in some of the world's most troubled regions.

Godfrey Mukalzi

Uganda, District 9200

After completing a Bachelor of Arts in social science from Makerere University in Uganda, Godfrey became a trainer in Peace Building with Borrow a youth friends of young people program in Kampala, Uganda. In this program Godfrey has facilitated workshops for young people in order to promote peace in the North Eastern part of Uganda. Speaking Kiswahili and Luganda as well as English has helped him developed his expertise in the areas of peace and conflict management. He hopes to work as a diplomat, advocating for peace through preventive diplomacy in the Great Lakes region of Africa. Gofrey has just returned from his internship in Durban – South Africa where he has been for the last three months. He was working with the African Centre for the Constructive Resolution of Conflicts (ACCORD) as a research assistance tracking and reporting on conflict situations in East and Central Africa.

Maria Fernanda Salina

Argentina, District 4880

As a law graduate from the Universidad Católica Argentina, Fernanda worked for four years as an in-house lawyer coordinating the recovery of the borrowing portfolio of Crédit Agricole Indosuez in Argentina. During that position she had to deal with one of the most significant crises of her country in the latest times: the financial collapse of the Argentinean system in early 2002. After that experience she decided to apply the negotiation and management skills obtained in that position but at the international level. Hence, she moved to the Netherlands to study a Master of Laws in Public International Law at Erasmus Universiteit Rotterdam. Prior to commencing her masters with UQ she worked during 2004, as an Assistant Lecturer in Public International Law at the Faculty of Law and Social Science of Rosario in Argentina. Her language proficiency includes English, Spanish, Italian, elementary Dutch and basic French. Soon after this Seminar, Fernanda is moving to Switzerland to continue her studies at the Graduate Institute of International Studies, at the University of Geneva. She will study a Ph. D. in International Relations with specialization in International Law. She hopes to continue her work in the field of International Law, international negotiation and capacity building and in doing so to contribute actively in the development of theories and strategies to solve and prevent international conflicts

Maiko Shimizu
Japan, District 2590

Since Maiko saw the United Nations Volunteers working as Election Officers in the first democratic election in Cambodia in 1993 on TV, she has been hoping to work in similar capacity. After completing a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science at the International Christian University in Japan, and after working in Business Management Department of a software company for three years, she joined InterBand, a Japanese NGO. While at InterBand, Maiko worked as a researcher and a programme coordinator with her main area of work being in election observation missions (Pakistan, Cambodia, Indonesia, and Taiwan). She also worked with Asian Network For Free Elections (ANFREL), an international network NGO, as an election observer. During her study at UQ, she has been focusing on in what ways internationals can assist creating stable peace in conflict-torn society, and what their role is. She is especially interested in "democratisation" part of peacebuilding process. During her AFE in Stockholm, Sweden, she worked at the Electoral Processes Team of the International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance (International IDEA), which is an inter-governmental organisation promoting democracy and providing electoral assistance around the world. Upon completion of her internship, she entered into a contract with International IDEA and has been working as a consultant for their Electoral Dispute Resolution Project and assisting their Voter Turnout workshops in Japan and Australia.

Alessandro Souza

Brazil, District 4480

With language proficiencies in English, French and Portuguese, Attorney at law Alessandro de Carvalho Souza has worked as a business law consultant in Brazil and practiced pro bono law for non government organizations. Alessandro is involved with volunteer service since he was 16 and during two terms was the President of the Rotaract Club Sao Jose do Rio Preto - Boa Vista, a NGO for youth persons in his city. Alessandro is hoping that once he completes his masters at UQ he will be able to work in the field of Human Rights and International Humanitarian Law. He hopes to work with international humanitarian agencies such the United Nations or the International Red Cross.

Sukthawee (Dao) Suwannachairop

Thailand, District 3340

Prior to commencing his studies at UQ Dao was a news researcher and correspondent for NHK Bangkok Bureau, Japan Broadcasting Corporation. In his position he was not only required to research news stories he also was an on camera presenter. He has presented and researched in English, Laos and Thai. After finishing his two years with UQ Dao aims to work at the policy making level of sustainable peace construction within the region of Thailand and in other parts of the world where it is needed; my further career goal is to become a university professor, expecting to improve the quality of education for students.

Brian Adams (USA)

After completing his Rotary Scholarship, Brian received a scholarship from the Australian Government to undertake a PhD at the University of Queensland. He is studying with the School of Political Science and International Studies. He is also working as a Researcher with Griffith University.

Yoshio Chikamatsu (Japan)

Yoshio returned to Japan briefly before heading back to Tanzania, with a Japanese NGO to work on schooling programs.

Noelle DePape (Canada)

Noelle has returned to Canada after working in Hill Country, Sri Lanka with the NGO PALM. She was conducting leadership training with Tamil tea plantation workers and running conflict management training for field workers and senior staff. While she has been in Canada she has been laying the foundation to start a peace camp, where she will work with young people of different ethnic backgrounds aiming to deconstruct prejudice and work toward a more inclusive and peaceful pluralism. She aims with the help of the NGO Institute of Community Peacebuilding to work locally on a number of racial and gang problems.

Mariano Griva (Argentina)

After completing his Rotary Scholarship, Mariano received a scholarship from the Australian Government to undertake a PhD at the University of Queensland. He is studying with the School of Political Science and International Studies

Sanjana Hattawua (Sri Lanka)

Sanjana is currently a Senior Researcher at the Centre for Policy Alternatives in Sri Lanka. He is also the Editor-at-large of the Research Unit and the Head of ICT and Peacbuilding at infoshare.com. Info Share is an Information Communications Technology initiative created to bridge communications between and within actors in the peace processes and enable greater public participation, accountability and transparency in conflict transformation initiatives. Sanjana is also primarily responsible for the Sri Lanka Peace Library project. He is also on the Editorial Board of the Online Journal of Peace and Conflict Resolution.

Josephine Manuel (Philippines)

Josephine has been out of circulation lately as she has been in some faraway land with the beach in her backyard, not on holidays but doing some real work. Josephine is overseeing rural development projects, in the Philippines, for the senator implemented, Countryside Development Fund. The work takes her to rural areas and lately, to a province where people are involved mainly in fishing. It is a nice environment and the beaches should have compensated for the hard work but it has been raining lately so it has not been particularly fun to be by the beach when the waves are so strong.

Colin Spurway (Scotland)

Colin is currently working as a Specialist in Community Development and Community-Based Conflict Resolution for Mercy Corps, an international relief and development charity. He was at home in Europe for a couple of months after graduation, spending time with his family and a young woman he talked into being his girlfriend whilst at Berkeley. But, for his sins, Mercy Corps posted him to Jalalabad in eastern Afghanistan in April where he trained thirty members of the Ministry of Rural Rehabilitation and Development in community mobilisation processes. The training lasted ten weeks, and since then he has been engaged in producing a trainer's manual and various reports on the same topic. Colin is spending September mostly in the UK trying to find a way to continue this work without losing his girlfriend. He welcomes any bright ideas. And if you have no bright ideas, a wee bit of sympathy wouldn't go amiss. And if you don't go in for sympathy ... single malt would suffice. Glenlivet, please.

Matthew Bright (USA)

After completing the Rotary Program, Matthew answered the call for volunteers to help out in Tsunami-affected Aceh. Working with Save the Children, he helped with relief operations for close to six months. On returning to UQ, Matthew has embarked on a PhD. Matthew has found that the most rewarding aspect of the Rotary Program was being able to put what he has learned into practice during the disaster relief operations. Matthew's PhD will provide him with an opportunity to more fully investigate the causes of conflicts and to provide possible solutions to them.

Francesca Del Mese (UK)

Francesca is currently working at The Hague, with judges from the International Criminal Tribunal who are currently hearing the trial of the Former Yugoslavia leader. She is working with people from 81 different nations. She is finding both the theoretical and practical sides of her studies at UQ, with the Rotary Program are allowing her to succeed in her current role.

Carolyn Fanelli (USA)

I am still working with Catholic Relief Services in Zimbabwe, but my job is undergoing some changes right now, so it is a bit hard to say what I am doing! Basically my focus is on integrating participatory communications initiatives into our projects, and documenting and sharing the sound practices, lessons learned and success stories that emerge from our programming. A colleague and I just finished drafting a How-to Guide on Child Participation in Education Initiatives, which will be published by CRS, that draws upon the sound practices of our community-based partner organisations. My most exciting news is that I am going to Rome next week to present at the World Congress on Communication for Development. The paper looks at how Zimbabwe is using a child-friendly communications strategy to facilitate child participation in its new National Action Plan for Orphans and Other Vulnerable Children.

Other than that, Mark and I are doing just fine! We are enjoying living in Zimbabwe, but miss Brisbane desperately. Visitors welcome anytime, as long as they bring TimTams, Cherry Ripes and a Coopers Pale Ale.

Path Heang (Cambodia)

I am now working with the World Bank, Cambodia Country Office, as Social Development Office in Justice for the Poor Program. Justice for the Poor is part of World Bank's efforts to improve governance and legal and judicial reform in the country. In its initial two years, Justice for the Poor embarks with research studies on disputes and disputes resolution in the most critical issues of land, natural resources management and governance. Disputes in these areas are in exceptional large scale which the Prime Minister warns that they could lead to farmer revolution if management fails. I have involved fully in the researches. Findings from the studies feed into the design of two new projects established as a result of Justice for the Poor. The two projects are: (1) Demand for Good Governance; (2) Empowerment of the Poor in Siem Reap. The projects, which are in the pipeline (under preparation), will have the total budget of $U35 million or so. I have also been and continue to be part of the two projects identification and preparation.

Ryan Hendy (Canada)

Employer #1: Still with the Financial Transactions and Reports Analysis Centre of Canada (FINTRAC) in Ottawa, Canada. It's a government agency who's mandate is to detect and deter money laundering and terrorist financing by providing law enforcement and intelligence agencies with financial intelligence. I'm currently a Senior Analyst in the Operations Sector. I continue to apply and develop much of the material that I absorbed at UQ and continue to apply it to my agency's anti-terrorism mandate.

- Employer #2: Continue part-employment with the Canadian Forces Army Reserves as an Infantry Section Commander in Ottawa. I'm currently leading a section of soldiers in all aspects of military training. Also assisting Regimental training in stability operations for current overseas deployments of Canadian soldiers. Although Afghanistan is the military's priority at the moment, I am also assisting with deployments and tactical requirements for Canada's current commitment to the UN mission in Sudan.

- Of course, I remain in touch with Rotary since my return to express my eternal thanks and to get more involved in Rotary activities generally. In particular, I have made presentations on the World Peace Fellowship to clubs around my district. As I mentioned last year, my sponsor club, Windsor St. Clair Rotary recently made me an 'Honourary Rotarian', which was great honour in itself.

- I noticed I was quoted in a recent Rotary publication as saying: The Rotary Fellowship Program at UQ has been one of the most significant professional and personal adventures in my life. Every day, I make use of the expertise that I developed from the program's rich blend of academic, work and life experience. The program fostered incredible friendships and has strengthened my resolve to pursue peace and conflict resolution as a life-long commitment". Still rings true this year.

Amy Kay (USA)

Amy Kay is currently the Regional HIV/AIDS Programme Officer for the UN Development Programme's HIV/AIDS Regional Programme in the Arab States (HARPAS). The Regional Programme covers 20 countries in the Middle East, North Africa and Horn of Africa. The Arab region has been mired by some of the worst and longest-standing conflicts in the world creating instability, poverty and risk to HIV/AIDS. Most recently the war in Iraq, failed state of Somalia, fragile peace in Sudan after decades of civil war, recent resurgence of conflict in Lebanon and ongoing protracted conflict in Palestine have further destabilized the region and increased HIV risk greatly due to vulnerability factors associated with war, including sexual violence, especially against women and children, forced mobility, community fragmentation, family loss and lack of access to basic services. In the HIV/AIDS context, conflict and AIDS reinforce each other, creating deeper destabilization and overall weakened public structures people depend on to protect and support basic rights^[1] . Amy is working with UNDP via its multi-sectoral approach- responding to AIDS as a governance, human rights, development and gendered issue. She is currently working with HARPAS team to coordinate the upcoming CHAHAMA conference November 2006 which will welcome over 300 religious leaders in the region- women, men, Christian and Muslim- all working in the AIDS response via this flagship Religious Leaders Initiative in the region. She looks forward to welcoming a fellow RWPF on his AFE where he will work on this initiative as well as the HARPAS Private Sector Initiative, Mr. Vadim Ostrovsky. She has also co-authored a publication with UQ Professor Dr. Roland Bleiker on development communication, photography and AIDS based on her RWPF AFE 2004 in Ethiopia. This will be published in International Studies Quarterly March 2007. Amy lives and works in Cairo, Egypt.

[1] Links with HIV/AIDS and conflict should be deeply recognized, reiterating UN Resolution 1308 stating "the HIV/AIDS pandemic is also exacerbated by conditions of violence and instability, which increase the risk of exposure to the disease through large movements of people, widespread uncertainty over conditions and reduced access to medical care..." (S/RES/1308/2000)

Sofia Knoecghel-Ledberg (Sweden)

Since returning to Sweden, Sofia has been working as the Program coordinator for the Cotemporary Silk Road Studies Program at Uppsala University. As well as a busy family life, with two young boys, Sofia has coordinated and facilitated numerous workshops and projects on peace and conflict management and prevention. The Rotary Program has strengthened her desire to work towards the peaceful resolution of conflicts. The Program also gave Sofia a deeper understanding and knowledge of a range of pressing issues.

Rebecca Milligan (USA)

Working as a researcher for the International Organisation for Migration, Rebecca is finding the training and expertise she gained during the Rotary Program at UQ invaluable. She is currently focused on researching and bringing to the media's attention the trafficking of children from Bangladesh and Pakistan to the United Arab Emirates, where they work as slaves. It is her current aim to bring about an end to this practice.

Christian Oakes (USA)

Chris and Rosemary have completed work on the building they purchased upon returning to the US. Chris is now scanning the adverts and submitting his C.V. for positions in organizations doing international development work. He is also considering the possibility of working in New Orleans to help rebuild there.
